Gov. Blaine Asks Hirst to Resign, Capitol Rumor

Governor In Oral Hint Is the Story

Highway Head Requests Blaine to State Reasons In Writing

Sen. Staudenmayer Acts Says His Ousting From Committee Head Is Not Legal Action

Reports were current at the capital today that Gov. Blaine has asked for the resignation of A. R. Hirst, highway engineer.

Following the differences that have arisen as a result of the removal of Senator George Staudenmayer from the legislative committee on the highway commission, the head existing between the governor and Hirst has broken out anew.

It is said that the governor recently made a request orally of Mr. Hirst that he resign. Mr. Hirst replied that he would resign providing that the governor state his reasons in writing.

When questioned about the matter today, Mr. Hirst refused to either affirm or deny that the governor has asked him to resign. He asked to be excused from discussing the matter.

New developments in the situation regarding the state highway department and special legislative committee were in prospect today following receipt of information from State Senator George Staudenmayer that he contends he has not been legally removed as chairman of the special committee.

Senator Staudenmayer also denied that the special legislative committee has been called to meet here with the state highway commission next week. He said he will refuse to participate in committee meetings or to audit expense accounts of members.

Following an informal meeting of the legislative committee in Green Bay last week, an announcement was made that Staudenmayer had been removed from the chairmanship and succeeded by Senator Oscar Morris of Milwaukee.

Farm Bill Is Center Today In Tax Fight

Would Add M'Nary Measure as Amendment to Tax Bill

(By the Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON — Disposing rapidly of pending amendments the senate today brought the revenue bill up for final passage.

Repeal of the tax on telephone and telegraph messages was voted 61 to 29 and then it was agreed to take up again the surtax schedule. Repeal of the message tax had been recommended by Secty. Mellon and approved by the house.

(By the Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON — Pressing toward a final vote on the revenue bill the senate today faced a stalling block in the plan of advocates of farm relief legislation to tack the McNary-Haugen bill to the bill as an amendment.

Attempts made yesterday to restrict debate on the bill today and agreed to vote on it for passage at 3 o'clock were blocked by objections from both sides of the chamber.

All of the committee amendments were disposed of yesterday with adoption of a gift tax, one of the two new taxes in the bill. That imposed on Mah Jong sets of 10 percent, is the other.

7 of 20 Ships Trapped In Ice are Released
SUPERIOR, Wis. — At 10 o'clock this morning, seven of the 20 or more boats held fast in the ice outside Superior harbor, had broken loose with the aid of tugs, and made their way into the harbor. Rain fell, falling and a strong northeast wind continued from his most unfavorable direction.

The battle was begun by the tug early Thursday. All day long they smashed their way through the ice. At 7:30 the Huronic was reached and the ice gave way as it steamed forward.

Many of the boats have been ice-bound since Tuesday. Ice ranging in depth from 10 to 20 feet packed around the vessels solid.

Allis Would Flirt With a Mummy, Claim
Wife of Wealthy Milwaukeean Tells of Her Odd Career

(By the Associated Press.)
MILWAUKEE — From successful actress in France to wifehood and trips to Monte Carlo, Switzerland and other European places of interest with prospects of a life of ease and money, then to a Montana ranch home, and ultimate decline to the status of a wife of a $75 a month clerk, and divorce, were vicissitudes in the married life of Mrs. Amber Allis, who continued her testimony today in her trial to obtain $250,000 damages from her husband's relatives for conspiracy to alienate his affections.

With Gilbert Allis, scion of a wealthy manufacturing family of West Allis and Milwaukee, the wife, Amber Allis, testified she lived on the whole happily, despite constant efforts of the part of his relatives to draw him away, according to her claim.

The great failing of Gilbert Allis, according to Mrs. Allis, was his inclination to flirt with other women.

Six Men Are Hanged For Murder of One; Go to Gallows Two By Two

(By the Associated Press.)
AMITE, La. — Six men were hanged today for the murder of one, Natalie Deamore, New Orleans and Roy Leona of Brooklyn, N. Y., the latter the slayer of Dallas Calmes, when Calmes frustrated an attempt of the sextette to rob a bank, died on a double scaffold a few minutes after noon.

They were followed in order by Joseph Bochio and Andrea Lamanita of Chicago and Joseph Giglio of Brooklyn, and Joseph Rini of New Orleans.

The executions followed at thirty minute intervals. Rini and Giglio had been taken from their cells preparatory to beginning their death march when there was a shout from the cell occupied by Lamanita.

The turnkey discovered he had slashed himself several times in the chest with a small pocket knife in an attempt at suicide. He was not injured seriously.

The order of execution was changed immediately and Bochio who had collapsed earlier in the day was led with Lamanita to the gallows. Lamanita, his shirt stained with blood, could or would not stand and he was seated in a chair on the trap and dropped in that manner.

In their cells the men awaited the hour of execution stoically.

To prevent any attempt at jail delivery by enraged countrymen of the condemned men Amite was turned into an armed camp.

National guard sentries, stationed at intervals of 10 yards, paced to and fro before the prison, while a manned machine gun is posted in the jail yard itself. More troops arrived Thursday by train and marched through the streets to reinforce the company already on duty.

During the day the troops dug a four-foot moat about the prison, and filled it with water presumably to stem any sudden rush.

W. J. Burns Quits Post Under Fire

Resigns as Chief of U. S. Bureau of Investigation

Center of Probe Storm

Selected Three Years Ago By Daugherty He Follows Chief

(By the Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON — William J. Burns, whose activities have been a storm center in several senate investigations, has resigned as chief of the justice department's bureau of investigation.

Selected for the post three years ago by Atty. Gen. Daugherty, the world famous detective has borne the brunt of much of the criticism leveled at the administration of the chief he now follows into retirement.

Burns' letter of resignation, laid before Atty. Gen. Stone today, asked that his retirement from office be effective immediately.

The resignation was accepted by the attorney general on those terms.

Not only before the Daugherty committee, but in the oil and Wheeler indictment investigations of the senate as well, Burns has been under fire repeatedly.

He was called before the oil committee to explain references to his activities in the famous Mary Dockstine telegrams relating to efforts to prevent the appearance of Edward B. McLean on the witness stand, and was also asked about McLean's enrollment as a secret agent of the justice department.

Before the Daugherty investigating committee he has been questioned about charges made against the secret agents under his supervision in relation to liquor and other cases.

Sen. Wheeler. On Stand. Denies Fraud Charge
WASHINGTON — In the face of documentary evidence relied on by the department of justice to prove the charge brought against him in Montana, Sen. Burton K. Wheeler today denied on the witness stand that he had been guilty of any wrong-doing in his relations to Montana oil land permits.

Appearing at his own request before the special senate committee, he testified that although his law firm had handled business in the state courts for Gordon Campbell, the oil operator indicted with him, he had never performed the services charged in Washington.

Nordman Ordered to Begin Quiz

Atty. Gen. Ekern's Action May Be Followed By Court Action

Sees 2 Cent Excess Gain

Market Bureau to Direct Refiners, Dealers to Submit Details

Investigation into the prices of gasoline, operations of gasoline dealers and refineries and price fixing methods was instituted today by the state department of markets at the direction of Atty. Gen. Herman L. Ekern.

The inquiry will assume large proportions, in the opinion of officials, and will determine whether court proceedings will be filed against gasoline firms.

In a letter to Edward Nordman, state commissioner of markets, Atty. Gen. Ekern requested that refiners, wholesalers, jobbers and other gasoline dealers be directed to furnish information as to the present prices, profits and costs of gasoline and "the reasons why the price of gasoline to the consumer is being uniformly maintained and not being reduced to yield only a reasonable margin."

In accordance with the request, Commissioner Nordman stated he will direct letters to all gasoline operators and that a close observation of the returns will be made to determine future action.

"The quoted price of Oklahoma gasoline is now 9 1/2 to 9 3/4 cents per gallon," Mr. Ekern stated in his letter. "The testimony taken during the last year showed that the freight charge is 2.65 cents and a fair margin for the cost of handling and marketing through a tank wagon is 4 cents. This would make 16 to 16 1/2 cents a fair tank wagon retail price on the present price of gasoline at Tulsa, Okla. from which place most of our independent gasoline comes."

"The returns to your department show a uniform service station price throughout Wisconsin ranging from 20.1 at Milwaukee to 21.2 cents at LaCrosse and Superior, and a uniform tank wagon price ranging from 18.1 to 19.2 cents per gallon, which is from 2 to 3 cents in excess of a fair margin of 4 cents per gallon."

"The oil trade journals indicate that the crude oil and refinery prices of gasoline are weakening and that there should be immediate reductions in the price of gasoline. There are also indications that the installation of an excessive number of service and other sale stations is continually going on, notwithstanding the testimony given before you that the number of such stations already was very excessive."

"You are, therefore, requested as provided by statute, to require immediate information from all refiners, wholesalers, jobbers and other large dealers in gasoline as to the present price of gasoline, profits and costs of gasoline and the reasons the price to the consumer is being uniformly maintained and is not being reduced to yield only the reasonable margin above indicated, and also require replies as to the conditions or practices which prevent such reduction, and as to the needless waste or duplication and in the excessive installations of service stations and other means for the distribution of gasoline."

Extended testimony as to price fixing was taken by the legal department and department of markets last year in an investigation of gasoline prices.

Discussion.

U. S. Commissioner of Education John J. Tigert lauded the University of Wisconsin for its pioneering in the field of extension education and declared that the Badger state institution has been one of chief factors in placing this type of teaching in the high place which it is today, in his address before the convention of the National University Extension Association at Lathrop hall Thursday night.

"The University of Wisconsin became a pioneer in the field of modern educational extension work when President Charles R. Van Hise began what President Birge terms his 'Service to the Commonwealth'."

"The extension movement has developed faster than any other movement in educational circles," Dr. Tigert said.

Dr. Tigert told the delegates that this was his first visit to the University of Wisconsin.

"I have found that it is a much greater institution than I had expected to find," he said. "The only other large institution which I have not yet visited is Leland Stanford University."

He outlined three important educational bills pending in Congress.

Teaches Women.
The possibilities and accomplishments of certain phases of extension work were outlined in a report made by Miss Netja Roberts of the University of North Carolina at the round table conference Thursday afternoon.

One section kept in touch with 6,000 women for a year through the activities of 145 women's clubs. The day is not far distant when expert advice and instruction in home economics, medical science, community building and other forms of home study will be carried to thousands of citizens in each state through educational radio extension courses, Dr. Theodore J. Grayson, University of Pennsylvania, predicted.

Dr. Grayson stated also that within a few years each progressive university and college will have its radio education with a director and corps of workers who will carry education to the home through the ether.

Now Teaching 77,000.
More than 77,000 students are enrolled in extension credit courses of the forty leading universities of the country, according to a report on standardization of extension courses submitted Friday by Prof. W. H. Henderson, University of Michigan, chairman of the standardization committee.

Universities of the nation are now offering more than 5,000 courses by extension.

Held Business Meeting.
The annual business meeting was held Friday afternoon.

Friday night the annual banquet with an address by President Birge, University of Wisconsin, will be held at the Madison club.

GREAT COMPOSERS Verdi Is An Aristocrat

GIUSEPPI VERDI

This is the fifth of a series of articles on the greatest musical composers of six nations. A discussion of music composition in America and Edward MacDowell will appear tomorrow.

By ERNEST BLOCH

"My dream is to hear a performance of one of Verdi's works in his own country. There it is at home, in its own soil, full of the warmth and light of the Italian scene."

It is impossible to think of Verdi apart from the Resurgimento, the unification of Italy. He is the musician of that period and his music completely embodies it.

Italy is also the nation of Tullio, Monteverdi, Corelli, Scarlatti, and many other great musicians, but they represent an entirely different period. They are musicians of Rome, Florence, Naples, not of Italy.

Great posters on which were printed

Vittorio Emanuele Re D'Italia

were to be seen all over Italy in the middle of the last century. They express in a very striking way the association which Verdi had in the popular mind with the political movements which made one nation of the Italian people. He is the color, the soul, the enthusiasm, of that period.

Besides, he was a great musician. Greatness is above all else the power of growth. From his first awkward attempts to his last work, "Falstaff," written when he was nearly eighty years old, his history was one of continual growth.

He is a patriotic, an aristocrat; there is dignity in his music, even when it is most "popular" in character. And, above all, he was a great musician. Greatness is above all else the power of growth. From his first awkward attempts to his last work, "Falstaff," written when he was nearly eighty years old, his history was one of continual growth.

Market Body Avoids Courts In Cheese War

Price Quotation Dispute Peace Sought By Commission

An effort to avoid court proceedings to test authority of the state department to compel cheese producers to give price quotations will be made for the present in the state department's plans for daily quotations on foreign cheese prices, according to Edward Nordman, marketing commissioner.

A number of cheese producers in the Monroe district declined to furnish the reports requested at a hearing there last week. The state department threatened to issue an order to compel the firms to furnish the data. Rather than take such a course at present, Commissioner Nordman favors some plan of co-operation between state department and cheese factories as a trial. If such does not prove successful, an order by the state department then would be in order, he declared.

The state department plans to issue periodic price summaries as a means of assisting producers and buyers.

The two men were enroute to Madison, the letter stated, when the accident occurred and Adams is believed to be working on a farm near here.

Corns

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.—Adv.

Plumber Thought

He Needed New Pipes

"My stomach and intestines were always full of gas and I often had severe colic attacks. The pain and soreness can tell me to think I needed a new set of pipes. Since taking Mayer's Wonderful Remedy all this has disappeared, and my only trouble now is to make enough dough to buy all the food I like to eat." It is a simple, business proposition that removes the intestinal mucus from the intestinal tract and allows the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.

Now Used for LUMBAGO

During the past winter thousands of people have used Joint-Ease with such remarkable success in the treatment of the most severe cases of lumbago that we are but doing our duty when we say to the public: "When Joint-Ease goes in—lumbago goes out."

Williams Is Offered Iowa Coaching Job

Hawkeye School Is Hot After Services of Brilliant Badger

ROLIE Williams, famous university of Wisconsin football, basketball and baseball star, at present coach of Illinois Millikin University of Decatur, has practically closed negotiations with University of Iowa athletic officials and is about to become the coach of Iowa's freshman athletics.

The acquisition of Williams by Iowa would round out a strong coaching staff at the Hawkeye institution. This is especially true of basketball where Williams' knowledge of Macneil's style of basketball would be great aid to Sam Barry, who heads this branch of Iowa athletics.

Williams while at Wisconsin was acknowledged to be the greatest all-around athlete ever turned out by the Badger school. In his three years of conference competition he won the "W" nine times, three in football, basketball and baseball. This eclipses the record of Guy Sundt who won eight letters.

Gus Tobell, another Badger athlete, who was considered for the position last winter was kept out because of professional football competition. Williams has competed with professional football and basketball teams which would also make him ineligible as a conference coach if the rules are strictly interpreted. This phase of Big Ten conference coaching will be watched with interest by sport followers throughout the middle west.

Butler Comes Out Flat For 'Wet' Plank

Says G. O. P. May Lose Wisconsin and Ten Other States

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and a delegate to the Republican convention, has come out squarely for the insertion of an anti-prohibition plank in the 1924 G. O. P. platform.

He said today that his party must take that step as "the only way to get back to sound constitutional government."

He added that the Republican party stood in danger of losing 11 states in the coming election if it did not take a decisive stand against the existing prohibition situation.

The states he named are Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, New York, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

Red Crown

The High-Grade Gasoline

Gives Better Carburetion

Thirty-seven nationally known automobile factories buy Red Crown Gasoline in tank car lots for testing purposes.

These manufacturers use Red Crown because it has made good—because after comparison it has been found to deliver more mileage, more power, less carbon, easier starting, greater flexibility, quicker pickup, and smoother acceleration.

It is practically certain that your car was tested and proved with Red Crown before it left the factory and that its entire carburetion system is adjusted to Red Crown Gasoline.

These are weighty arguments why you should use Red Crown, but there is a more forceful reason in the unqualified guarantee of uniformity which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) gives you with every gallon of Red Crown you buy.

Fill up with Red Crown anywhere and everywhere and you will get more mileage, better mileage, and better carburetion.

"Tanlac gave me the surprise of my life. I now have a glorious appetite, every trace of stomach trouble has disappeared and I am enjoying the best health and strength I have known in years. I owe Tanlac a lasting debt of gratitude. It's a wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 Million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills, for constipation, made and recommended by the manufacturers of TANLAC.

The Capital Times has furnished the Madison theater with a song on Mother's Day which will be played at the theater next Sunday—Mother's Day.

The new organist of the Madison theater, M. C. Bridwell, has already gone over the selection several times and he states that the melody is a beautiful one. The words and music were written by Hai Cochran, an NEA writer.

The selection will be played at both the afternoon and evening programs by Mr. Bridwell.

Mr. Bridwell recently succeeded Carl Lagerquist as the organist at the Madison theater. Mr. Bridwell recently opened the new Wisconsin theater in Milwaukee—one of the finest movie theaters in the northwest.

For Breakfast, there is nothing quite as good as Oscar Mayer's specially selected bacon.

To Demonstrate New Night Driving Highway Safety Device Here Monday Night

A new device to eliminate accidents on highways at night is being pushed by a group of Oconomowoc, Wis., business men and will be demonstrated on a road near Madison Monday night. The device, called the "Badger Center Illuminating Road Marker," was invented by William Moldenhauer, of Oconomowoc and has been registered in the U. S. patent office.

One of the Oconomowoc men backing the device, which is designed to light up the center of concrete roads in the county at night by reflecting the light from the automobile headlights, is J. A. Peacock, chairman of the state civil service commission.

The road marker is contrived to be placed along the center of concrete roads. It consists of an iron archway which stands two and one quarter inches above the road level and is inset with a heavy glass center, resembling a miniature croquet arch with a glass center. The lights from automobiles, striking the glass center, reveal a glittering line down the center of the road.

In tests recently conducted about the state, motorists were questioned as to their opinions of the illuminating device and are said to have expressed commendatory remarks, declaring that the markers clearly showed the center of the road and that, with their use, the danger of a light-blinded driver crashing into an approaching car was averted.

SYRUP PEPSIN
Keeps young girls fit

False Modesty Wrecks Health

THE young lady just assuming the responsibilities of a woman is very apt to be self-conscious of her physical functions, and in consequence neglect them. There is no time, however, when it is more important for her to look after them. Chief among her troubles is constipation, and her suffering will be serious when she gets older if she does not regulate her bowels now. Mrs. Mary Keller of 132 Benton St., Sisterville, W. Va., was perplexed about her daughter until her own druggist told her they used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at his house, and she did likewise. Miss Irene Mazierska of 90 Peter St., Buffalo, N. Y., is glad her attention was called to Syrup Pepsin.

Public Recognizes Merit
You will quickly see the difference between a mild laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and castor oil, or rough cathartics and physics. Syrup Pepsin acts gently, and does not gripe. Increased doses are not necessary. A bottle can be had at any drug store, and a spoonful costs less than a cent. It has been successfully used for thirty years and is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, over 10 million bottles having been sold in drug stores last year. Keep Syrup Pepsin in your medicine chest.

Safe for Young and Old

Let mothers with growing daughters interest themselves in this matter and see that their judgment is enforced.

A rule followed by many is to take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin once a week until the bowels function daily, and at such other times as there is headache, biliousness, sores and

The Central and East Side orchestra was to take part in the Class A contest Friday afternoon and the Wisconsin high orchestra in the Class B event.

"I appreciate the cooperative spirit which has been manifested," he said. "If this attempt is successful it will call to the attention of the educators the importance of music in the high schools. The spirit that has been shown is truly admirable."

Arrangements to entertain the students here were extensive. Thursday night the University Concert band gave a complimentary program for the visitors and citizens. A banquet will be given on Friday night just before the final event.

The students were provided with free lodging. High school students here, as well as universities, sororities and fraternities offered their hospitality.

The contest marks the inauguration of an annual event at the university. Similar contests have been held in the states of Kansas, North Carolina, Michigan, Missouri, and Ohio.

To Arouse Interest
The object of the contest is to arouse interest and enthusiasm for music among high school students.

Events were held for the glee club bands, orchestras, and mixed chorus. There were solos for the voice, violin, and piano.

The high schools are divided into two classes—A, with an enrollment of 500 or more, and B, with fewer than 500 students.

All of the contestants are graded on the ability displayed in rhythm, appearance, tone, intonation, interpretation, selection, and other qualities.

In each event there will be first and second prize cups and honorable mention. In the individual events, a gold pin will be given as first prize and a silver pin as second.

The most coveted prize of all is the Wisconsin high school trophy—a large loving cup to be awarded the high school with the greatest number of points. The winner will retain the cup for a year, permanently if successful for two successive years.

Championship points are awarded in the following manner: Girls' glee club, first place, eight; second place, four; mixed chorus, first place, eight; second place, four; orchestra, first place, ten; second place, five; Band, first place ten; second place, five; Solo events first place, four; second place, two.

Demetral And Parelli Battle to Draw Bout

Greek Has Edge as Match Ends at Mid-night

MILWAUKEE—Joe Parelli, middleweight wrestler, who topped slightly here last night when Jimmy Demetral, a Madison middleweight, wrestled 90 minutes to a draw with the wiry Italian. An established rule in Milwaukee is that bouts at midnight end at the twelfth round which was one of the most spectacular ever seen here.

Although the bout actually went to a draw, the popular opinion was that Demetral had a slight edge in the performance.

Efforts are being made to bring the two boys together in Madison in the near future.

Atlanta's Triumvirate to Be Succeeded In the Future By Three Maple Bluff Youngsters, Prediction

THE triumvirate consisting of Bobby Jones, Perry Adair, and Alexa Stirling, that put Atlanta, Ga., on the map in the golf world, will be succeeded in the near future by a triumvirate consisting of Bud Cantwell, Dave Gernon and Dorothy Page, close followers of the game in Madison believe—and their belief is just as justified as it is sincere.

Persons posted on golf knew quite well the history of Bobby Jones, Perry Adair and Alexa Stirling. Jones is now the National Open champion, Alexa Stirling held the women's National Open title and Perry Adair, who is probably just as well known as the other two is rated as one of the best players in the game.

Perry Adair came into prominence when he was about 17 years of age. Jones sprang into the limelight at 15 when he worked his way into the semi-finals of the National Open only to lose to Bob Gardner, then the defending champion. Since that time he has won the Southern championship every time he entered the competition and now possesses the open title.

Alexa Stirling also made her debut in the midst of great golfers when in her first attempt at the championship she lost the women's national open to Mrs. Vanderbeck in the finals. During the next three years she won the National Open but two years ago lost it to Glenna Collett.

With the brilliant careers of these three famous golfers upmost in their minds as an incentive, Madison's promising trio are soon bound to win their way toward the top.

'Bud' Cantwell and Dave Gernon, each about 15 years of age go around the Maple Bluff course, of which they are members, in less strokes than most men, and under the tutelage of Guy Martin, the club's professional, they are developing into great players. That they will soon be causing consternation in the ranks of golfers throughout the country is a statement based purely on the games of the youngsters.

should today be the state champion according to her friends. Miss Page is automatically barred from entering the state tournament because she is not of age. Until she is of age she must be content with shooting scores as low—if not lower than those that win the tourney year after year.

Last fall, during the state tourney here, Miss Page practiced by herself and her game attracted the attention of all entries in the meet. In the event that the bars should be let down to permit this girl to compete, Wisconsin might see a new state champion this year. Miss Page is also taking instructions from Guy Martin, and Guy predicts a wonderful future for his pupil.

"Watch those three youngsters a few years from now," is a remark you might hear a Maple Bluff member make to a visitor, as they pass Bud, Dave, and Dorothy on the course. And it will do well for Madison golfers to watch them indeed. Madison will unquestionably be as well known to golfers through the achievements of these youngsters as Atlanta is because of the achievements of Bobby Jones, Perry Adair and Alexa Stirling.

CHICAGO—A change in plans will postpone until Sunday the departure of Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul light heavyweight, from here to his camp at Grand Rapids, Mich., where he will train for his match with Georges Carpentier at Michigan City, May 31. against his eligibility, this time on the ground that he had received money for officiating in High School football and basketball games while attending the La Crosse Normal and before entering the University. These activities had not been taken into account when he was reinstated by the Conference.

He was immediately withdrawn from the Varsity teams and the matter was to have been taken to the Conference Eligibility committee again for determination. The following official statement was issued by the Athletic Council today: "In the case of Mr. Gerber, the Athletic Council has carefully considered the additional evidence presented since his reinstatement by the Conference, has advised informally with the Conference Eligibility Committee on the case and has reached the unanimous conclusion that Mr. Gerber is ineligible for further Conference competition. It is a matter of regret with the Council that neither the Council nor the Conference possessed complete information regarding the case when the Conference first acted upon it. The evidence subsequently submitted has so altered the situation that the Council does not consider itself justified in submitting to the Conference a formal request for a second reinstatement."

Gerber immediately resumed Varsity athletics and became a valuable member of the Varsity swimming team and was also a member of the basket ball squad, but in the midst of the season additional information was received that further objections had been raised

HIS BROTHER'S WIFE

by RUDY AYRES
© NEA SERVICE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The marriage of Dolly and Nigel Bretherton proves an unhappy one. When war is declared, Nigel is glad to enlist. He leaves Dolly under the care of Mary Farnival. Nigel is killed and Dolly marries an old sweetheart, Robert Durham.

Dolly and Robert sail for America and word comes of the sinking of their ship. When Nigel's brother, David, calls to see Nigel's widow, Mary, is ashamed to tell him of Dolly's marriage. David mistakes Mary for his brother's wife and asks her to come to live at Red Grange with him and his aunt.

Mary is happy in her new home. David Fisher wishes to marry Dolly. She calls at Red Grange and becomes jealous of Mary.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

She had worked herself into a thoroughly bad temper by the time she got to London; it was raining a little, and Dora hated rain. She took a taxi to the hotel, and when she got to the man waiting while she went into the house and demanded the fare from Monty.

He had just finished his dinner, and rose from the table, smiling with pleasure at sight of her.

"Well, dear?" He murmured, looking at her with a smile.

"Have you any money? The taxi man is waiting."

His hand went at once to his pocket.

"How much?"

She told him, and was quick to notice his frown.

"It was raining, and I hate rain," she complained petulantly.

"You might have taken the tube half way; you know we really can't afford to have taxis everywhere."

"I don't like to be so mean," she said, "but I don't want to go home without a word of thanks, and gave it to the maid, then she came back, saying her hat and gloves on to the sofa. I suppose the dinner isn't fit to eat, and I'm so hungry."

"I didn't expect you, or I would have kept it here. Tell the maid to bring you something. I thought you might not be home till the last train; I should have come to Euston to meet it."

"They didn't ask me to stay, and I'm sure I didn't want to."

"Did you see David?"

"Yes, he seems cross with Nigel's wife; they had been out in the car together all the afternoon, and don't know what the world you meant by calling her pretty."

"I think she is—or was—in a common sort of style."

"She's not—not in any sort of style. Dolly's a fine girl."

Monty laughed.

"I don't like a girl; you're too good-looking yourself to grudge anyone else a small share."

"Well, I hate her—I hate the way she's got in with David and Miss Varney. I hate her ways—oh—"

She broke off exasperatedly.

Monty lit a cigarette. He knew his sister very well, indeed, in his mood, and always took refuge in silence. Dora broke out again suddenly.

"I thought you said she had red-brown hair?"

"So she had. Has she changed the color then, or what?"

"She's never trouble enough about herself to want to change the color. It's just ordinary mouse-brown."

"Humph! Then she has changed it, or else it isn't the right girl you saw," he chuffed her.

"Don't be such an idiot!"

She dropped into a chair, turning her back to him. As a rule she was quick to temper, but the afternoon had thoroughly upset her.

Monty smoked on imperturbably. Once he ventured to whistle a snatch of song. Dora rounded on him instantly.

"Oh, do shut up! A lot you care what happens to me! In the car if I'm happy or miserable!" She began to cry haltingly.

Tears of sheer temper were hers. Monty thought she was really unhappy. He was sufficiently fond of David Bretherton himself to be sure that he was the type of man a woman would adore. He came round to where Dora sat with her face hidden in a large handkerchief, and put his arm round her shoulders.

"My dear girl, don't! I hate to see you so upset! What in the world has happened? Can I help at all? You know I'd do anything in my power."

She pushed him impatiently aside.

"Oh, leave me alone!"

She looked up at him with resentful eyes.

"You ought to have persuaded David not to leave that wife of Nigel's down there; you ought to have tried to get her to go home. Just warning her away with a cry-baby, and already they are beginning to wonder how they managed before she came."

"My dear child, isn't that what I did try to do? Didn't I tell David? Didn't I do everything in my power?"

"You ought to have insisted that some other arrangements were made."

"Now you're talking sheer rubbish! I'm not David's keeper. Surely he has a right to please himself?"

Dora began to cry again, but this time Monty was unmoved. He had had enough of it. He got up and walked out of the room.

When David got back to the Red Grange he found Miss Varney alone in the drawing room. She noticed the quick way in which his eyes roamed round the room as if in search of someone else.

"Where's Mary?" he asked abruptly.

"I really don't know, dear; she was here a moment ago."

Mary had slipped away when she heard the sound of the car in the drive; she did not feel as if she could face David again just then. Whenever she thought of her own impulsive words she felt as if her whole body were melting.

What must he have thought of her? What moment of madness had made her say such a thing?

She had loved Nigel—and David was Nigel's brother. But, though as yet she did not realize it, it was strange how lately Nigel had begun to fade into the background of memory. She would have indignantly denied it had anyone told her that it was so, but the fact remained, nevertheless.

Perhaps she had never loved him as deeply as it was in her nature to love; but he had been her one, and only romance, and the tragedy of his death had lent a halo of beauty to his whole life.

Married to him, she would always have adored him, but in spite of herself her whole feeling towards him had unconsciously changed since his marriage.

Even to the broken-hearted, Time is a wonderful healer, and there is no truer saying of all the many penned by the immortal bard than that "Men have died, and worms have eaten them, but not for love."

And Mary was still young. She was beginning already to lose the wan, careworn look that had thinned her face when she first came to Red Grange. The quiet, healthy life, free from trouble, had done wonders for her; she slept well and dreamlessly, and woke full of energy, looking forward with almost childish anticipation to the simple events of the day.

Learning to drive David's car had given her tremendous pleasure. It was something so different from anything she had ever experienced—something so exciting.

David was speaking of the car when, a little later, she came into the room.

"Dora only just caught her train. The engine was running badly; it would hardly take. David's Hill at all—"

He was interrupted sharply at the soft sound of the opening door. Mary did not look at him as she came forward, but she was painfully conscious of her quick heart-beats and flushing cheeks.

She sat down beside Miss Varney, and took up a book for another lesson in the morning. David asked her.

"Well, are you ready for another lesson in the morning?" David asked her.

He was determined that somehow she should be made to look at him, and speak to him; he wanted to meet her eyes again, but Mary did not take time.

"I think it will be wet tomorrow," she said.

He laughed.

"What difference can that make? There is a hood to the car. And it was raining yesterday when we went out."

"Was it?" She felt strained and unnatural with him; she wished he would go away or sit down. He looked so tall and overpowering as he stood there, and she was so painfully conscious of his gaze bent up on her.

Suddenly:

"Miss Fisher wants you to go and stay with her in town."

The words had the desired effect. Mary raised her eyes at once.

"Oh, I couldn't! I don't want to be rude, but I'd so much rather not."

"You do not like her?"

She flushed.

"Oh, I don't like her. I think she's simply beautiful, but—"

"You made friends with her easily enough, my dear," said Miss Varney affectionately.

Mary could think of no reply. The book had fallen from her knees; she stooped and groped after it at the same moment in which David bent to pick it up for her, and their hands touched.

Mary drew hers away sharply, and there was a little additional color in David's face as he laid the book down on her lap.

The silence was unbroken save for the click of Miss Varney's knitting needles.

"I am going to show you over the old part of the house after dinner," David said suddenly. "You said you would like to see it, and there is a moon tonight."

She looked up interestedly.

"What has that got to do with it?"

"Everything. The old link looks only its best by moonlight."

"Oh!"

"And the ghost always walks by moonlight," said Miss Varney.

Mary clasped her hands rather tightly in the lap of her frock.

"Perhaps you shall see her then," she said, with forced brightness.

Miss Varney shook her head.

"In my opinion she never existed, my dear. I've never seen her, and I very much doubt if anyone else has. Dear me—no dinner already?"

UNCLE WIGGLY'S BEDTIME STORIES

By HOWARD GARIS

(Copyright, 1924 by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGLY AND THE PEEP HOLE

Uncle Wiggly was home all alone in the hollow stump bungalow one day, for Nurse Jane had gone down town to the eleven and twelve cent store to buy a new Gishpan. All of a sudden the rabbit gentleman heard what he thought was a knocking at his door.

"Come in!" he invited, and right after that he was sorry he had said this. For it might be the Fox or Wolf, thought the rabbit.

However, as neither of these unpleasant animals entered Uncle Wiggly once more began to twinkle, his pink nose, which he had stooped when he thought of the Wolf. Then the knock sounded again:

"Rat-a-tat-tat-tat-tat."

"Dear me! Come in, if you please, whoever you are, and don't stand there knocking!" cried Mr. Long ears. "If you're looking for Nurse Jane she isn't here."

"I'm not looking for any one special," a sad voice said. "I don't care who helps me, but I need help, for I am in trouble!" And then the knock sounded again: "Rat-a-tat-tat-tat."

"Dear me! Why don't you come in?" asked Uncle Wiggly. "I shall be very glad to help you out of your trouble, whoever you are. But come in; don't stand there knocking."

"I can't come in!" said the voice.

I can't see a thing in this peep hole!

was some one knocking on my door; was it?"

"It was," answered the bird. "I thought if I knocked and tapped long enough and loudly enough that some one would come to help me. See, my legs are fast in a cane string that when it was caught in a tree. I can't pull my legs loose to fly away."

"I'll help you," kindly offered Uncle Wiggly. With a pair of scissors from Nurse Jane's work basket the rabbit gentleman soon set the woodpecker bird free.

"Thank you!" chattered the bird. And with that he began drilling holes in the trunk and branches of the tree. Next, little round holes in the wood the woodpecker bird drilled with his strong bill.

"Why are you making those peep holes?" asked Uncle Wiggly, for he noticed that, each time the bird made a hole he looked down in it.

"These aren't exactly peep holes," laughed the woodpecker. "I am after worms and bugs that are inside the tree. To get them out I make holes, and then, of course, I have to peep in the holes to see if a worm or bug is there. In a way they are peep holes, though you can't look through them and see a baseball game, as you can do, sometimes, through a hole in the fence."

"That's a funny way to look at it," laughed Uncle Wiggly. "I used to look through peep holes in a fence when I was a young rabbit."

"There is very little to be seen in one of my peep holes," said the woodpecker. "Take a look!" He drilled a hole near the ground for the rabbit, and Uncle Wiggly took a peep. All the bunny saw was a bug and a worm.

which the bird picked out. Uncle Wiggly was just stepping away from the woodpecker's peep hole when, all of a sudden, there was a rustling in the bushes and a voice growled:

"What's going on here?"

"That's the Fuzzy Fox."

"Oh!" gasped Uncle Wiggly. "Hat Ha! I fooled you, didn't I?" snickered the Fox. "Which of your legs would you prefer that I nibbled at?"

Uncle Wiggly didn't know what to say, but, all of a sudden, the woodpecker winked one eye at the rabbit and said:

"You nibble any ears, Mr. Fox, wouldn't you like to look in a peep hole and see what you can see?"

"Oh, yes, I'm very fond of looking in peep holes," chuckled the Fox.

"Then take a look in this one!" begged the bird, and quickly he drilled a deep hole in the tree. Now there wasn't a thing to be seen in this peep hole—not even a bug. But the Fox put his left eye to the hole and he looked long and hard. Then he put his right eye over the hole and he looked harder.

"Say, what kind of a trick are you playing on me?" howled the Fox, as he turned around. "I can't see a thing in this peep hole!" And he couldn't, for there was nothing to see. But when the Fox turned around he couldn't see Uncle Wiggly, either. For, no sooner had the bad chap put his eye to the peep hole than the woodpecker whispered to the bunny:

"Then take a look in this one!" And he did; so the Fox didn't get him. And the bird flew off to drill peep holes in another tree, and as he went "Tap-tap-tap-tap!" the woodpecker laughed at the Fox.

"Gurr!" growled the bad chap. "Tooled again!"

And if the butter doesn't slide off the slice of bread to go to the movies with the chocolate me, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggly and the bottle of pop.

STMBBNGNHNBN; SLPPNGNBNPDSN;

Only one letter of the alphabet is needed to clarify the jumble of letters shown above. Insert the correct letter at the proper places, and you will form a rhyme that tells the story of the old-time tavern keeper.

Yesterday's answer: The Sockers, battling first, had men put out; as they scored 1 run to every 9 outs against them, the total score was 3. The Rockers, battling last, had at least 10 outs against them; as they scored 1 run to every 5 outs, their score was 5, with 25 putouts against them. This means that the game must have been won in the ninth inning with one man on base, and one out, at which point, with the score 3 to 5, one of the Rockers knocked a home run. For the Rockers were never behind, therefore the score must have been a tie when they came to bat in the ninth; and only a home run could be responsible for the scoring of 2 runs.

NOTE LEFT FOR MRS. MARY ALDEN PRESCOTT BY MRS. LESLIE PRESCOTT

DEAR MOTHER:

I hope you won't think I am a little bit, running away from you in this way, but you know I haven't seen my own mother for months, and it is over a year since I last saw her. I am sure you will understand me. I am sure you will understand me. I am sure you will understand me.

I have been thinking of you a great deal lately, and I am sure you will understand me. I am sure you will understand me. I am sure you will understand me.

I have been thinking of you a great deal lately, and I am sure you will understand me. I am sure you will understand me. I am sure you will understand me.

Of course, I am all eagerly and attentively at the thought of seeing my own people, but I'll try and make time enough, mother dear, to see you in a little while I am with them.

My friend, Ruth Ellingson, will be back tomorrow, and she has promised me to come over and see you. I am sure you will like her, mother dear. She is one of the best women I have ever known. She has had rather a sorrowful life, but I hope her future will be more pleasant.

I remember very well that when I was at your home you expressed a desire for a new cap, and remarked that it was almost impossible to get such an old-fashioned thing nowadays, when grandmothers wear one-piece bathing suits instead. I told my friend, Ruth Ellingson, who has a delightful lingerie shop where you said, and it struck her funny-bone.

She determined that you should have not only one, but two or three caps and she has made you some lovely ones—one with black lace with flat silver roses, which will look exquisite on your soft, white hair; and one of white lace with cunning little black velvet decorations, and last, but not least a perfectly beautiful one of white thread lace with tiny pink rosebuds.

You see, I remembered your lovely complexion—that complexion that I described to Jack, and which made him use "Keep that school-girl complexion from youth to age" in one of his advertisements. He made an awful lot of money from that contract, mother dear, and you should make him pay you a commission of a beautiful lace wrap with some elegant furs. I'll see that you have them when I return. Regards to Miss Anderson.

Lovingly,
LESLIE.

THE CIRCUS ELEPHANT—CHAPTER 23

At first Jack thought it would be great fun to ride on a camel. And then on second thought he told the elephant man to lead him to ride on Boscoe, the friendly elephant's back. "We can arrange that easily enough," came the reply. And Boscoe led Jack down on the ground.

The trainer led the way to where Boscoe was standing. He was very much surprised when he saw his clumsy friend. He then led him to a small pond where he had gold and silver trinkets all over his back. And right on top was a small little seat with a cover on it.

"You can ride right up in that seat if you want to," said the elephant trainer. "Oh, that will be great," replied Jack. He then led him to a small pond where he had gold and silver trinkets all over his back. And right on top was a small little seat with a cover on it.

Raymond Hitchcock Here Today

Raymond Hitchcock

Instead of going into musical comedy from legitimate, as many actors do, this popular actor is getting from musical comedy into legitimate. Many people found it hard to believe that Raymond Hitchcock the one and only Raymond of Hitchcock fame, was really and truly playing the Old Soak in the piece of that name. But he is, strange as it may seem.

The play's by Don Marquis, famous himself for many reasons, for his poetry and prose and his column in one of New York's papers. The play's about just what you think it must be about judging from the title, an old soak—a ne'er-do-well drunkard. And it's an even bet that Raymond Hitchcock, with his rough voice and bearing, does well in the title role.

Well, what's this all about? Merely that Raymond Hitchcock is coming to the Parkway tonight in the "Old Soak". He'll play here tomorrow afternoon and night too.

REPORT OF THE MARKETS

May 9, 1924

Wheat Takes Slump After
Early Gains

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO — Although the wheat market showed something of an advance at the opening today, a decline soon took place. Bullish aspects of the government crop report were chiefly responsible for the initial strength of prices. On the other hand, moderate commission houses selling apparent crop for northwestern account led to the subsequent setback. The opening range ranged from a shade lower to a shade higher, July 1924, was followed by a reaction all around to below yesterday's finish.

The close was firm 1/4 to 1/2c net higher, May 1924, to 1.04 1/2 and July 1924, to 1.05 1/2.

CORN—Corn and oats were relatively firm, with corn in some demand from shorts. After opening unchanged to a shade higher, July 1924, to 1.04 1/2, but later narrowed a little.

PROVISIONS—Higher quotations on live gave steadiness to the provision market.

Stock Market
Is Irregular;
Rails Strong

(By the Associated Press)
NEW YORK—Irregular price changes took place at the opening of today's stock market with no definite trend apparent in the first few minutes of trading. With the exception of Atchafalaya, most of the rails showed a moderate strength. Oils were again heavy. Mack Truck dropped a point. Baldwin and American can improved fractionally.

Prices steadied in the later trading with good buying developing in the railroad group. Norfolk and Western advanced 1/4, and New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, 3/4. Baldwin cancelled its early gain and May Department Stores dropped 1/2. Sinclair eased 1/2, and then rallied 1/2. Steels held firm. Foreign exchanges opened steady. Standard Oil of New York advanced 1/2. The closing was irregular. Sales approximated 300,000 shares.

McNary vs. Marvin; a Joint Debate

Farm Relief Bill Argued By Two National Authorities: Senator for a $200,000,000 Fund to Establish a Ratio Price; Tariff Heads Says Fundamental Economic Principle Can't Be Changed By Legislation

SENATOR McNARY

THE FARMER

THOMAS O. MARVIN

By SENATOR CHARLES L. McNARY
Author of the Farm Relief Bill

By THOMAS O. MARVIN
Chairman U. S. Tariff Commission

PRICES of farm products have fallen so far behind prices of other commodities that the country's entire agricultural structure is threatened.

It is the purpose of the farm relief bill now in Congress to increase present prices of agricultural commodities to a "ratio price"—that is, a price on the general level with the prices of other commodities.

The bill creates an export commission and an export corporation, with capital stock of $200,000,000 to be subscribed by the United States.

If the commission finds that the prevailing domestic price of a farm commodity is below the ratio price—as the result of a surplus which must be exported at prevailing low foreign prices—the president is authorized to declare an emergency.

The commission will then recommend to the corporation the amount of the commodity it should purchase at the ratio price, while the president adjusts tariff rates or sets an embargo to prevent an influx of the commodity in question from abroad.

The corporation then sells the commodity in the United States at not less than the ratio price, and sells the surplus abroad at the highest price obtainable.

If the corporation buys at the ratio price and sells at the lower export price, it is evident a loss will be sustained. The commission, therefore, will estimate the probable losses during an operation period and will then establish an "equalization fee," to be collected by use of "participation certificates."

Certificates to the amount of the equalization fee will be given by the purchaser to the producer as part payment for the produce purchased.

As an illustration, if the ratio price of wheat is $1.50 and the equalization fee—representing the loss to the corporation per bushel—is 20 cents, the farmer will be paid $1.30 in cash and 20 cents in certificates.

If at the end of the operation period the losses total less than was estimated, the difference will be distributed as dividends to the farmers holding participation certificates.

In this way the corporation will suffer no loss, surplus farm produce will be taken care of, prices of farm produce will be kept at the same level as prices of other commodities, and the farmers of the country will be saved from bankruptcy.

lief in the illegality of the Teapot Dome or California leases, and he has repeatedly taken occasion to eulogize Mellon and Denby. He proceeded to condemn the Senate in the following language:

"Instead of a government of Law, we have a government of lawlessness.It is time that we returned to a government under and in accordance with the usual forms of the law of the land."

Later in a public address on April 22, President Coolidge expressed his surprise and satisfaction that no more than three of the nine members of the Cabinet had been involved in the charges of graft and corruption growing out of Senate investigations.

"From all of this sordidness," the president said, referring to the profiteering and corruption of the war period, "the affairs of government of course, suffered. In some of it a few public officers were guilty participants, but the wonder is not that this was so much or so many; rather that it has been so little and so few."

It may be that to cynical political leaders and hardened trust magnates there is nothing shocking in the revelations of governmental rottenness which have come from Washington.

Certain it is that so far as the statements of its accredited leaders are concerned the Administration stands on record as hostile to the purposes and scornful of the methods and results of inquiries which have done great service to the public by reviewing the facts of the oil reserves which have driven Daugherty from the office of Attorney General, and called public attention to the huge tax refunds of hundreds of millions of dollars under Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Behind this effort to discredit the investigations is the organized plunder-bund which fattens off special privileges from the Government. Judge Gary

YOU can't charge a fundamental economic principle by legislation.

You can't beat the basic law of supply and demand by artificial price fixing. That's why the so-called "farm-relief bill" is an antidote at one end, but poison at the other.

It may serve as temporary relief for the farmers' ills, but it will end by making them worse than ever.

The farmers are in a bad way because of over-production. If the relief bill is passed, what will it do? Stimulate more production! In this way the proposed legislation will aggravate the very condition the results of which it is trying to overcome.

With production thus further stimulated, the surplus will become greater and greater. The corporation, which must purchase this surplus, will have on its hands a quantity of farm produce it cannot possibly handle.

As it exports more and more farm produce at a low figure, it must boost domestic prices higher and higher to keep pace with its losses. This will reduce domestic consumption, people will turn to substitutes, and the situation—with supply increasing and demand decreasing—will become worse and worse.

Beside this, fixing the price of one commodity will affect many others.

Take wheat as an example. If the price of wheat is boosted and protected by an embargo and we will need an embargo on foreign flour. Then they, too, must put their prices up—so we will need an embargo on foreign flour to protect their industry.

If the price of wool should sink below the so-called "ratio," it would be boosted in the same way. Then we would have to put an embargo on imported suits, socks, overcoats, sweaters, blankets, yarns and a hundred and one other commodities, to protect our manufacturers and merchants.

Artificial price fixing has been tried as a remedy for undesirable economic conditions almost since the dawn of history—but it never yet has worked.

Diocletian, emperor of Rome, promulgated his famous price edict in 301 A. D., fixing a price for "provisions and other articles of commerce." History tells us that "the effect was disastrous; it brought about a disturbance of the food supply; many traders were ruined, and the edict gradually fell into abeyance."

"As such plans go, the McNary-Haugen plan is probably as good as it can be. But any plan artificially to stimulate prices is fundamentally wrong and must result in eventual failure."

speaks for the whole system of Private Monopoly when he denounces Congress and encourages attacks upon the Senate such as the last few weeks have witnessed. Monopoly cares nothing for Denby, Fall or Daugherty or for any political party. But it is determined to maintain its grip upon the government. It fears that if Monopoly's right to seize the public domain, to obtain tax refunds and to violate the anti-trust laws of the country is seriously questioned the whole system may be menaced. Senator Walsh of Montana, Senator Wheeler, and Senator Couzens have been subjected to violent abuse because they have dared to oppose themselves to this system.

A campaign based upon the assumption that the American people are so degenerate as to be indifferent to governmental corruption or so ignorant as to be deceived regarding the real import of the Senate exposures is doomed to failure.

Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest

THE KINDLER WORLD

When the fish begin to bite
And the clouds are fleecy white
In the glory of the sun,
Then another world than ours
Seems to beckon me away,
Where the birds and trees and flowers
Live and laugh and sing and pray

This old world wherein we dwell
And go toiling through the years,
Has so much of pain to tell
With its oft repeated tears,
And so much of care and grief,
That another world was made
For the weary soul's relief,
Filled with sunshine and with shade.

There the people are the trees,
And the butterflies a-wing,
And the golden coated bees
And the birds that sweetly sing;
And some drowsy afternoon
One may hear out there alone,
If his soul is but in tune,
Language sweeter than his own.

They will have no shame to tell
As he lies out there and dreams.
They have nothing they would sell
And they'll talk no sordid schemes,
But the marvel of the eld
They will everywhere display;
Down the avenues of God
They will lead his soul away.

And it's I who soon shall pass
Out of city street and wall,
To lie full length upon the grass—
For I've heard the summer call,
And the soul of me shall stray,
While I fish with rod and line,
To be happy for a day
In a kindlier world than mine.

"Out Of A Number of Over a Million, Why Pick on Lib-er-tee?" —Chorus by 948,000 Chi Tribune fans.

My chest is swelled with pride today
For I did not submit a name.
No feelings hurt caused me to-day,
To aught their 20 thou. can pay.
My chest is swelled with pride today,
For I did not submit a name.

To Red Lewis, Eland, Wis.: You EDLON was O. K. but too long to print to keep them down to 16-20 lines.—J.

Dear Penrod:
Here is my entry for your WHEN I LIKE TWO CENTS contest.

The other day I drove down to Rock and in the evening went out to some place to put up for the night. It was a little dark and as I wasn't quite sure of the neighborhood, I unwittingly parked my car several doors down the street from my friend's room where I changed into a nightgown from the usual towel I wear while driving. Later in the evening I found it necessary to go down to the Western Union and was on the street to get my flannel for the night. There had been other cars parked there since. A cop was standing on a corner by and he casually glanced at me. As would have it, I opened the door of an old silver sedan parked near the place I had mine, before I realized the mistake. The cop searched around and found mine. Meanwhile the cop came across the street with a sharp eye on me. When I tried to start my car, I found that I'd left my keys up at my friend's. When I started to get out of my own car, the cop's suspicions were fully aroused. He came over and listened to my story while I grew nervously enough.

He wasn't satisfied, though, till I showed him down to my friend's house and identified, and had seen that I actually possessed keys to the car I was after.

Local hash fans will be pleased to know that Mike Uphoff and Walter Scharf, former of orie caddies at the COFFEE SHOP, have moved up their own filling station on West 3rd, son, right off of State.

They guarantee to put fat on the ribs of a cigar store Indian.

Inasmuch as National Baby Week has coincided with National Mow Week, the sponsors of the former should have been far-sighted enough to have called it National Noise Week.

News Note: SCIENCE DISCOVERS FAT MEN STAND HEAT BETTER THAN SLIM ONES.

For years our weight has been a bane,
Huge laughs and jokes we've born.
But now it seems the worm has turned,
We grin in lofty scorn.

It used to be, a hefty guy
Was laughed at and abused.
But science has of late found out
That we've been badly used.

For now from learning's halls comes word,
A fat guy's got more stuff,
To stand the drag of summer heat,—
These thin guys aren't as tough.

No more there'll be the classic scene,
Of fat men puffing fast,
Or melting in the bleacher's sun,—
For all those days are past.

From now our chests with pride will swell,
And chins stuck out will ride,
We'll give lean brothers all our dust,
And grin at them with pride.
